Currency conversions

Markdown or markup on the reference exchange rate for all transactions and chargebacks

2.00 %

➔ 1. When are currency conversions made?

Currency conversions are made when

- > the Merchant submits a Transaction to Global Payments Germany in a Transaction Currency that is not a Settlement Currency (in this case, the Transaction Currency is converted to euro and euro is then the Settlement Currency); or
- > the Settlement Currency is not the Payout Currency (in this case, the Settlement Currency is converted to the respective Payout Currency).

This applies accordingly when credits and Chargebacks are charged to the Merchant.

2. What exchange rates are applied?

1. Currency conversions are made at the exchange rate respectively defined by Global Payments Germany for the purchase of foreign currencies. The exchange rate consists of the following two components:
 - > the relevant reference exchange rate for the settlement date, and
 - > a markdown on the relevant reference exchange rate if Global Payments Germany makes a payment to the merchant, or a markup on the relevant reference exchange rate if Global Payments Germany charges the merchant for credits or Chargebacks.
2. The relevant reference exchange rate for currency conversions from a Transaction Currency to a Settlement Currency or vice versa is the exchange rate that has been used by the respective Card Organization for the relevant Transaction or Chargeback in relation to Global Payments Germany on the settlement date (next business day after the submission of a Transaction or Chargeback to Global Payments Germany). The respective exchange rates used by the Card Organizations are published here:
 - > <https://www.mastercard.com/global/currencyconversion>
 - > <https://www.visaeurope.com/making-payments/exchange-rates>

The relevant reference exchange rate for currency conversions from a Settlement Currency to a Payout Currency or vice versa is the fixed exchange rate ("Festkurs") of Deutsche Bank AG respectively notified to Global Payments Germany that is valid on settlement date (next business day after the submission of a Transaction or Chargeback to Global Payments Germany). The respective fixed exchange rates are published in the BIS:

<https://bis.globalpayments.de/>

Note:

The markdown is always deducted from the currency that is the target currency of the conversion. The markup is always applied on the currency that is the target currency of the conversion. Concrete calculation examples are published in the BIS:
